

It's been a busy couple of weeks since the last time I posted. I had a real nice Bolivian Ram spawn. The mother was doing great, but I got paranoid she was eating the wigglers, so I stole most of them and placed them in a 10 gallon. They started jumping yesterday, but I went to the fishroom this morning and they were all dead. She did eat all of her fry in the community tank as well. Next time, I'm letting her parent raise until the fry are free swimming. I say once they are freeswimming, they should be ok. The apisto fry are doing great. The double red agassizi age her wigglers, but I have two females in that tank, and both are gravid. Should have eggs shortly. The other apistos look like they are on the verge of, if not have already, spawning.

The fishroom got down to 68 degrees while we were gone, which wasn't good. Might have lost power, but not able to tell. The digital thermometer I have measures lows and highs for the past 48 hours...I've since put some plastic up across an open wall, and the fishroom is a comfy 75.

Hope everyone has a safe and fun New Year. 2009 has been great, looking forward 2010.

Thanks for stopping by.
